

The Office for Students – market regulation, enhancement and student engagement

BEN HUNT – OFS STUDENT PANEL MEMBER

BENJAMIN.H.HUNT@KCL.AC.UK

Shifting Landscapes

‘The principle of improving teaching quality in the academy is a good one, but the application of an award of this nature will only incentivise wholesale reputational competition and not the qualitative individual and nuanced metrics needed to measure teaching quality for students.’ – 18th of April 2016, Westminster Higher Education Policy Forum

‘The university and Students’ Union also agree that the Teaching Excellence Framework (TEF) metrics currently under discussion are not, in their current form, appropriate measures for improving educational quality and that the use of benchmarks does not encourage or recognise year-on-year improvements. – 18th of January 2017, Joint King’s College London and King’s College London Students’ Union statement on TEF

‘Higher education is fundamental for the flourishing of the next generation...Our role as the OfS is now to be receptive, reflective and to react to student issues as we work to place them at the heart of the new regulator...’ February 2018, Launch of the Office for Students at Westminster

NO TO FEE RISES, NO TO THE TEF

BOYCOTT /
THE NSS

© Museum of London

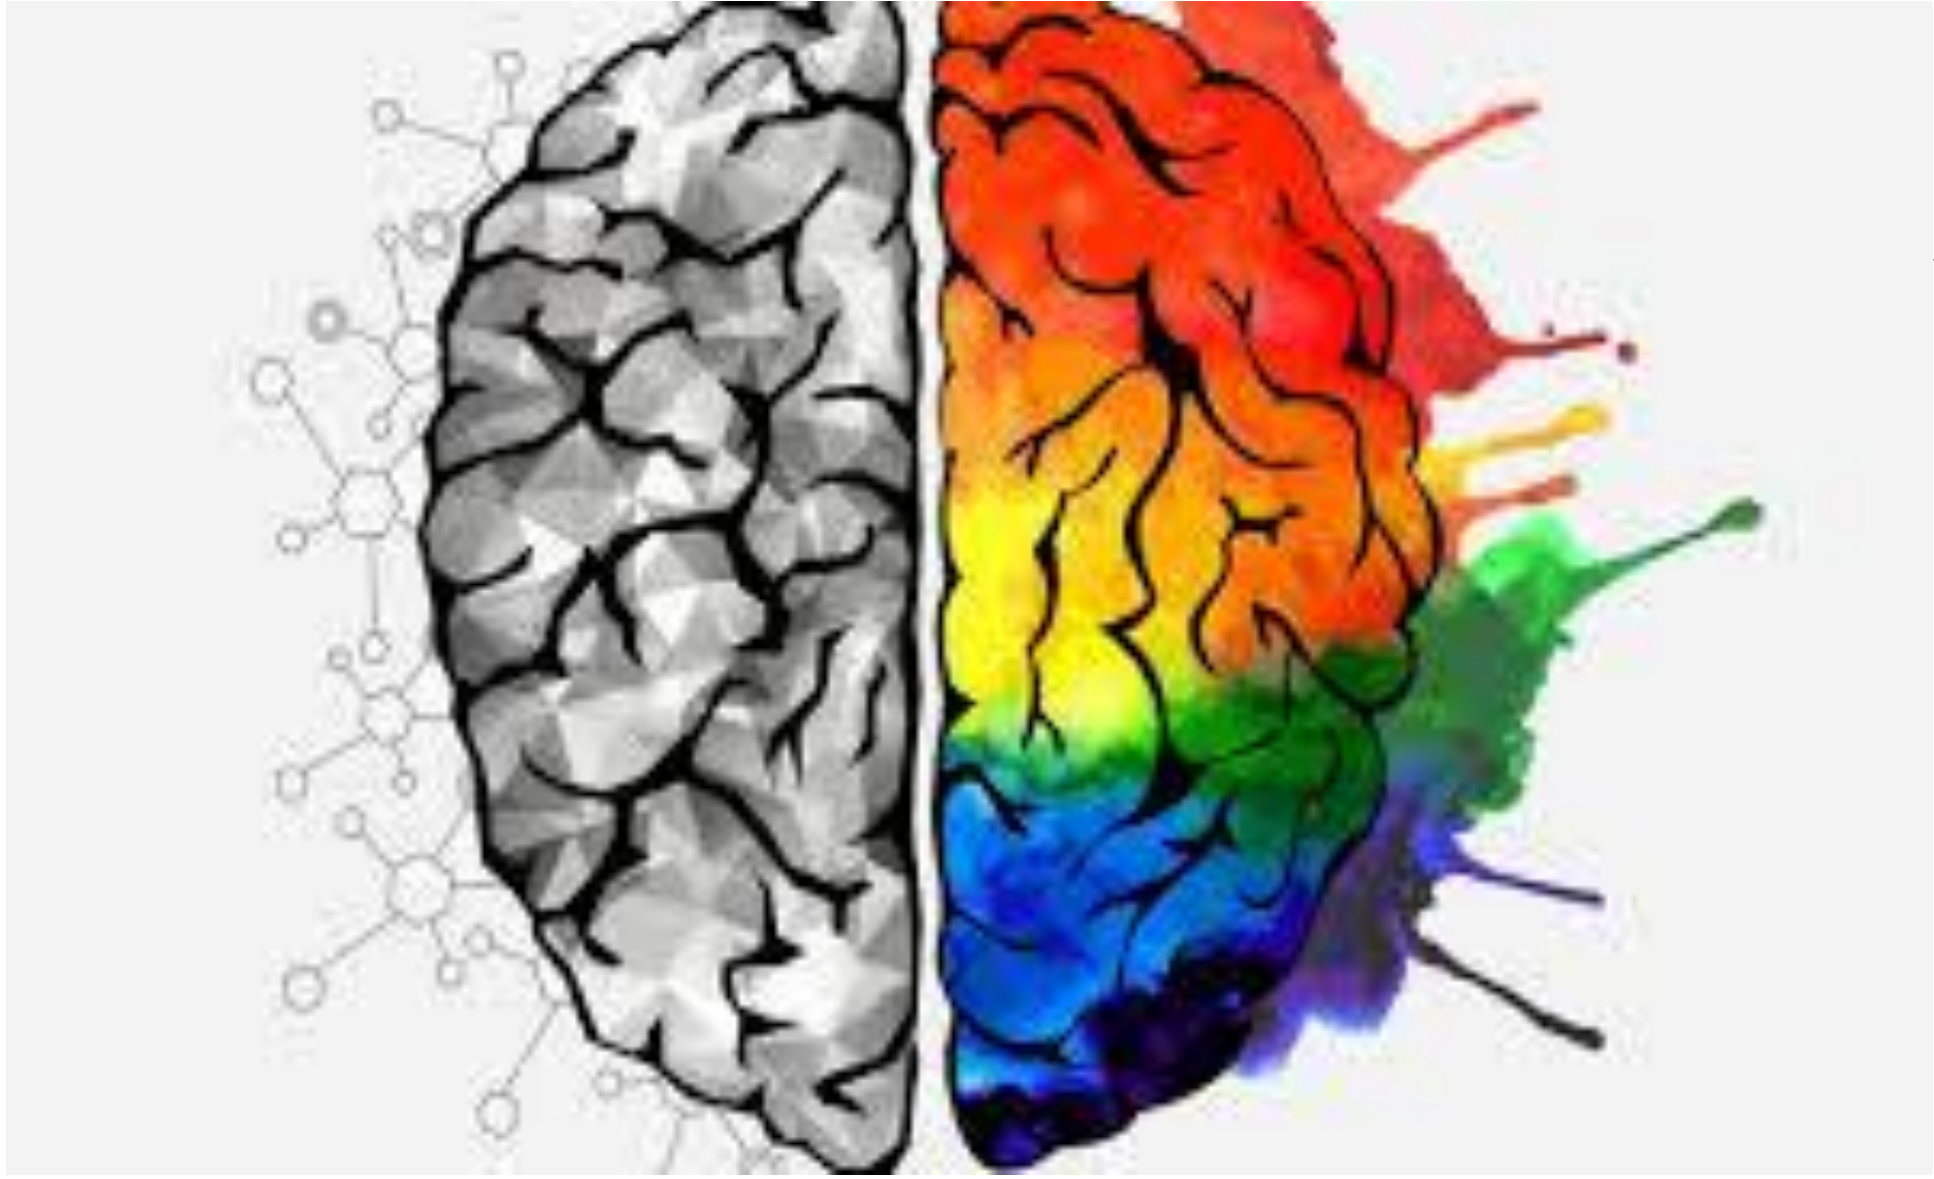

unihealth™

Ben Hunt – Ofs Student Panel member
Benjamin.h.hunt@kcl.ac.uk